“ My Dad and Butch's brother Ivan were best friends. I worked with Butch on Ivan's farm baling hay. One day, I was going too fast with the hay rack and the whole load tipped over. Butch jumped clear of the mess and helped me restack the load and get it back before anyone knew what happened. Most people don't don't that Butch practically invented the 99 cent store with his Railroad Salvage business (in 1962 I believe). He was a hard worker, a heck of a guy, and he was my friend.

“ Butch and I have been friends for fifty years. Fred Dowden and Big Bill (Linda's dad) introduced us and thought we would be good partners. We started out in the railroad salvage and then on into the construction business together. Butch was a very intelligent guy and hard worker. He was shorter than I am but I looked up to him numerous times in our relationship. Butch was always in a hurry but that was part of Butch. We were partners, drinking buddies and and best of friends. We learned to respect each other and I will miss him always. Sharon and I had the opportunity to have a long visit with Butch while he was in Sioux Falls. The three of us laughed, cried and reminisced. It was a real gift to us and will remember it forever. In the end Butch did it his way. God Bless Him
