“ My husband and I always talk about how different our families are and how fortunate I was to grow up being close to cousins and having an aunt and uncle be so involved growing up and I’m pretty proud to agree—I am incredibly fortunate to have my aunt Ann and uncle Randy—memories of fun summers and the BEST family holidays always have them in the center. I remember when my dad (uncle Randy’s brother) died and uncle Randy being there, he really filled in a roll in many ways that he didn’t have to and was not obligated to but he did willingly and I’m so grateful for him, we learned a lot from him and have only good and fun memories... I am pretty devastated for his girls and my aunt to have to go forward in life without him, he really was rock in our family and he deserved more time with them and his grandkids...Cancer is a beast and he faced it head on, a real warrior and his fight is going to help others continue to weaken the beast for the future. I love him a lot and will miss him. His passing hurts the most. I just hope there’s an endless supply of $5000 mugs up there and that the Vikings never lose a game. Until we meet again ❤️

“ Randy was a very proud dad. He was a dedicated family man. I was proud to have him as my big brother. He suffered more than anyone should ever have too in the end. He held out so he could have as much time as possible with his family. He was so lucky to be surrounded by so much love in the end. He was very lucky to find his soulmate so early in life. Together they created a loving home and brought up incredible kids and grand kids. He introduced me to country music while giving me rides to school and I new I didn't like country music from the start:). Bachman–Turner Overdrive Always reminds me of him whenever I hear it. Cranked up loud on his bike it was the coolest. He looked forward to picking up his girlfriend every morning and heading to school. Turns out he spent his entire life with her. He was bigger than life when I was growing up. He had his motorcycles and always drove his cool trucks. He taught us how to be entrepreneurial and how to work hard for what we wanted. In many ways he was a second dad to all of his younger brothers. He will be missed and the world is a better place because he was here. He left the best part of himself behind and I'm so sorry you guys lost him so early. He knew he was the luckiest dad and husband alive.... Love you bro. See you on the other side.

“ Ann-so sorry to see the news of Randy, you both were kind souls.
I too lost my soulmate of 34 years 10 months ago, I can relate to the broken heart you are feeling.
I think the last time I saw you both was at the hospital after his terrible accident in the barn!
Peace to you and your family ❤️

“ The highlight of the season through the years has been Thanksgiving with the Devall's. No muss no fuss just show up for the bountiful feast prepared by chef Randy and his girls. Always cordial in a house filled with people and pets, Randy and Ann have been great in-laws and no nicer people will you meet. Randy will be missed by all in this short life with the years so fleeting, he laid down a marker in his struggles of the past few years and his courageous fight to live your best life and love today.
